The host OSWB (Ophthalmological Society of West Bengal) has embraced the fraternity of ophthalmologists in Eastern India states and they have all come together as 'LOC of the East' to give you a memorable experience to carry back home.

In the ever-changing field of ophthalmology, Continuing Professional Development (CPD) is most crucial to ensure that all ophthalmology practitioners stay updated with the latest in clinical knowledge and surgical skills. Therefore, in order to stay relevant and competent, AIOC 2024 (All India Ophthalmological Conference 2024) promises to offer the tested and effective means - bringing together the brightest minds in the field of ophthalmology and learning with them by engaging intensely during all 4 days of the conference, both in-session and one-to-one. What better way than this of interactive and participatory CPD / CME.

So, come friends and immerse yourselves in an exceptional academic experience curated with utmost care keeping you – the Delegate, in mind. Gain from the knowledge-sharing and skill transfer opportunities! Profit from the peer-networking and trade bargains!! Experience fulfilment and happiness from the enriching memories that you carry home from AIOC 2024 Kolkata!!!

Kolkata has always been a thriving metropolis, which has something to offer for each one of you. From its colonial architectures with cobble-stone paved pathways in the hitherto commercial centre of Esplanade to the shiny glass and steel façades of tall structures in the upcoming and happening Newtown – the city is known to grow on you, in a charming way of its own. You may choose to experience the more sedate pleasures of its temples, museums and art galleries or you may thrive in the kaleidoscope of its shopping malls, clubs and the promenade. It is hard to miss the symphony in the diverse fare of this culturally-rich melting pot that is the city of joy - Kolkata.

Members of the Local Organizing Committee (LOC) are eagerly waiting to greet you and your family at the conference and are working hard to make your visit hassle-free and meaningful. I am sure many of your friends are awaiting this opportunity to connect physically with you once again. I am also looking forward to meet you personally during AIOC 2024 Kolkata.

On behalf of Team LOC of the East, I wish you all a great conference and a wonderful time here. Come let us help 'Envisioning the Future Together'.

About City of Joy

Kolkata is known for its colonial architecture, music, theatre & its undying love for anything related to literature. If the yellow taxi & the tram are historically synonymous with Kolkata so are the first underground metro rail, first cell phone call & now the first underwater metro – under the Ganges. This charming city pleasantly showcases different architectural styles, the Gothic style like St. Paul's Cathedral, the Colonial like the Victoria Memorial and the Neoclassical style like the Fort William & the GPO. One can take a boat-ride to experience the sunset on the Ganges or visit Dakshineswar Kali Temple & Belur Math by the river.

The sports lovers can take a peek into the hallowed pitches of Eden Gardens, the Royal Calcutta Turf Club and the evergreen Golf Club in Tollygunge. The National Library in Alipore is the largest Library in India & holds an impressive collection of rare books & manuscripts. The passionate photographers should not miss Prinsep Ghat which offers a breathtaking view of sunrise in the backdrop of Howrah Bridge & the canvas of Kolkata.

For the foodie, here are some of the lip-smacking dishes from the local cuisine of Kolkata which one must try

Macher Jhol (fish is an integral part of Bengali cuisine); Shukto (popular mixed veg dish), Aloo Posto (unique to most parts of Bengal), Kosha Mangsho (the must mutton-item on a Sunday non-veg menu), Mochar Ghonto (for the vegetarian in you), Rossogolla & Sandesh (the quintessential duo of the famous Bengali sweets) and of course the must-try Mishti-Doi (which is unique to Bengal and the constant repeat item on the frequent traveler's list) No wonder Kolkata has something for everyone.

Came join AIOC 2024 Kolkata to experience & pamper yourself in the City of Joy!
